It is probably not an accident that the title of Turchin's book, "The Phenomenon of Science," closely parallels the title of Teilhard's, "The Phenomenon of Man." Yet it is equally clear that Turchin does not agree entirely with any of these authors, and his debts to them are fragmentary and selective.

The Phenomenon of Man. Teilhard then argues that evolution has not stopped with the creation of human beings, but is now in the process of converging the human mass (like atoms and cells before them) into a higher complex arrangement, this time on a planetary scale. All along the way, this evolutionary process has revealed itself to be one...
